Folks:

It's finally happened. Mass hysteria. I've seen it in action and as a model yacht racing tactic it has shown to be quite effective. This is how it works; you get yourself into the lead and then start a rumor that this is the last lap and we should be making our run to the finish line. Even if there is still a half lap to go. Amazing. It usually only works once though.

I've heard that you can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time but not all of the people all the time. But if you can fool most of the people for long enough you might be able to win a race. Happens in politics all the time.

Anyway. I've not counted race six because the finishers, including me, that were recorded had not completed the race in its entirety.

A drop dead beautiful day with very confused wind until about 2:30 PM when it settled to SW at 5 MPH. We raced until 4:00. Had a blast.

HMS is designed to track boats by their number and not by their skipper so when boats are swapped about there is no efficient way to keep track. This is unfortunate because racing different types of boats is great fun and very instructive.

That said here are the results of Sunday's slug fest. Enjoy.

BTW. Check us out at WWW.DPMYC.org. There are a couple of dynamite videos that will knock your socks off.
