Folks:

The sun was shining, the birds were singing and most importantly the wind was blowing. The day started out with a lite but steady breeze out of the NE and picked up slightly as it backed around to the West. Made setting a proper course a challenge but we dealt with it, and had a blast.

We had a bit of extra excitement as a couple of us had to hastily take our dinghy on a rescue mission across the lake to haul out a first time kayaker who had deserted her craft for an unplanned dip in the drink. The lesson to that story; it's not a good idea to take off your PFD to get your cigarettes if you don't know how to swim or get back in your boat.

I heard a rumor that I forgot to attach the HMS form with the race results to the message for the last Coulon Park get together of 5/25/2013. Could be true. I'm not admitting a thing though. But if it's true, here they are.

Enjoy
