Folks:

It rained on the way down I-5 from Skagit County, but by the time we arrived at Surprise Lake in Milton, WA, Bill and I were greeted with sunny skies and Cranberry lake like winds. That is to say lite and variable winds were swinging out of a 90 degree arc, West to North.

It is a situation like this you need to set up a Cranberry Lake type course, with 3 possible windward marks and 2 start lines. How can you go wrong. It was a challenge but also a lot of fun.

I thought it was interesting that we had 5 points separating the middle 6 boats. I have no idea what it signifies.

Enjoy,
Larry Stiles
