DPMYC Wednesday IOM Regatta, 05/27/2015

The spring wind has clocked from SE toward the West and the sun has at last shown its face but has not displayed the settled quality that means summer is here. That doesn't happen till sometime after the Fourth of July. What's the season between spring and summer anyway? Sprummer?

Anyway it's not the time to dither, it's the time to change. So it's from the Lake and to the pier. We're getting the routine sorted and the show is on.

The sailing Sunday was a bit of a shake down. Everything came together nicely though with lite, consistent, westerly winds that allowed for finesse and cunning. Failing that it was great just to be able to see what you were doing. Four sailors made for something like match racing.

The set up for Wednesday was smoother and the wind was much the same as Sunday but a touch stronger. Six sailors this time, including Jerry Brower. Jerry probably has ten times as much model yacht racing experience as the other five sailors combined and on this day we were able to tap into this treasure trove. It was like having your very own play by play analyst standing beside you. I think we all benefitted. I know I did. Someone needs to make a video. With the knowledge we have in our area and the view from the pier, it would be golden.

Enjoy.
