Folks:

This time when I arrived at the site the wind was a steady 20 MPH but as I was getting used to the water I saw a rapid increase to 30. Wow. The wind clearly defined with 18 inch waves with the topes blown off. This is like having too much money.

But at around 11:00, with a glorious gust of 37 MPH and me making moves to rig down to #3, it started to slowly drop off and by the time racing started it was back in the 20 MPH and #2 rig range again.

We raced our bums off and got 16 one lappers in before the afternoon caught us. All the races but a very few were closely contested with strategy, or the lack there of, being the deciding element.

Good quality sailing, with 1 point separating the number 2 and 3 boats.

Enjoy.
