Folks:

The average spring sailing at Bowman bay is pretty damn good. This last Sunday though was off the chart. Great visibility, a strong steady wind out of the west, a solid course with a start/finish line to die for, makes my mouth water just thinking about it.

And did I mention the racing. Holy Mackerel. Three points separating five boat. My My.

After the race we were treated to watching Julian's brand new V10 getting dowsed with a fine dark stout. Hope the stain washes off. More racing should take care of it.

Enjoy.
