

Seattle MYC Regatta #2 – IOM Class (April 15, 2017 at Coulon Park)

Larry Stiles Reporting & Scoring:

Folks, a pleasant warmish sunny spring day, although the wind was moderate to non-existent. It came from most directions but mostly from the South or North, depending on when you looked. The sailors that competed though were treated to some first-class racing, four boats separated by four points, and something I haven't seen in a while, every boat completed every race. Enjoy.

Deception Pass MYC Regatta – IOM Class (Wednesday, April 12, 2017 at Bowman Bay)

Larry Stiles Reporting & Scoring:

Folks, it was a trick of the light that allowed us to see the wind. The lovely Flamenco dancer would sway and spin, revealing and then hiding as she closes and then opens her silver and green fan. Always tempting but never satisfying. Beckoning with her siren eyes.

The silver green fans of wind would spread across the water like a broken string of pearls on the cold hard floor. Veer away and you may miss an advantage. Greet it with indecision and you may get knocked flat. Catch it just right and you could go “skipping across the ocean like a stone”.

With the wind nominally coming out of the South it might have been a problem to have an East West course. But it worked very well. We had lots of room with long off sets and a very usable start finish line. Delicious. Enjoy.

400' long Bowman Bay pier at low tide. “Folks, it was a trick of the light that allowed us to see the wind. Beckoning with her siren eyes.” (What’s this Larry, a weird kind of, “Where’s Waldo” – Editor?)
